(U) Fullerton – Eight Arrested Outside Milo Yiannopoulos Speech

(U) At least eight protesters were arrested outside a venue on the California State Fullerton campus where controversial conservative speaker Milo Yiannopoulos spoke to an audience of more than 800 people. At least two people were arrested after a scuffle between left-wing protesters and right-wing counter-protesters, said a university spokesman. Another protester, a woman wearing a black helmet and mask, was arrested after shooting pepper spray into the air. One woman sought treatment from firefighters, but no other injuries were reported.

(U) Riverside – Parent Who Held Teacher Hostage at Elementary School Killed by Police

(U) SWAT officers swarmed a Riverside elementary school classroom yesterday evening and shot a parent who had taken a teacher hostage, ending a seven-hour standoff. The parent, identified as Luvelle Kennon, 27, of Riverside died later at a hospital. The teacher, Linda Montgomery, sustained some scrapes and abrasions when she was grabbed and pulled into an empty classroom. It is unclear whether the man was armed but witnesses did not report seeing any weapons. Authorities are still trying to determine the exact motive for the parent's actions.

(U) New York – Suspect Claimed He Committed NYC Truck Attack for ISIS

(U) New York City – The 29-year-old man detained after a flatbed truck drove down a bike path, killing at least 8 people and injuring more than a dozen more, left a note in the truck claiming he committed the attack for ISIS. Authorities said the man—identified as Sayfullo Habibullaevic Saipov—rented the truck from a Home Depot, then sped down the greenway for more than a dozen blocks before apparently deliberately ramming into a school bus. He then got out of that truck afterward and was seen running through traffic with a BB gun and a paintball gun before being shot in the abdomen by police and taken into custody. He is being treated at Bellevue Hospital, where he remains in custody.

UNCLASSIFIED//FOR OFFICIAL USE ONLY(U) INTERNATIONAL*(U) Bosnia-Herzegovina – Terror Suspect Extradited To US

(U) Sarajevo – Bosnian authorities said a man with suspected terrorism links has been extradited to the United States. The prosecutor's office said in a statement that the agency has taken part in an operation to locate the suspect and hand him over to the US. The operation was kept secret for three months, and no other details were immediately revealed. Bosnian media have identified the suspect as Mirsad Kandic, an alleged ISIS supporter from Kosovo sought for years by the US.

(U) North Korea – Two Hundred Feared Dead After Tunnel Collapses At Nuclear Test Site

(U) Punggye-ri – About 200 people are feared dead after underground tunnels at a nuclear test site that was feared to be unstable reportedly collapsed, crushing 100 people in the initial cave-in and 100 others when the tunnels again gave way on top of rescuers, according to Japanese media. The collapse at the test site occurred on 10 October while people were doing construction on the underground tunnel, and it is speculated that North Korea's sixth nuclear test on 3 September most likely caused the tunnel to crumble and created serious damage in the region. No officials have confirmed the media claims, but experts have feared for more than a month that the test site was on the verge of crumbling since the nuclear blast. Chinese scientists have also warned the mountain could collapse and release radiation. Radioactive xenon-133 was detected in South Korea after the test.

(U) South Korea – North Korea Believed to have Hacked South Korean Warship Blueprints

(U) Seoul – A South Korean lawmaker says North Korea probably stole South Korean warship blueprints in April 2016 after hacking into Daewoo Shipbuilding & Marine Engineering Co Ltd.'s database. North Korea has often been implicated in cyberattacks in South Korea and elsewhere, but Pyongyang has either ignored or denied accusations of hacking. Daewoo Shipbuilding has built several South Korean warships, including an Aegis-class vessel and submarines. The hacking was discovered by a division under South Korea's Ministry of Defense in charge of investigating cases of cybercrime.
